Hi, tonight I went to my car around 11:30 pm and as I walked back to my front door a black female cat, looks to be around 1 years old or younger ran up to me meowing loudly and seeming to be hungry and followed me inside my house. I brought her to my garage and has given her food and water. She's the friendliest cat. She has small white spots bust mostly black with big green eyes. Unfortunately she's super skinny and it seems like she's been lost for a few days. She has no collar But I believe she has had an owner because of how clean she was. Please let me know if anyone has lost a young female black cat.
