My family and I went out of state on March 14th. A snowstorm hit the area while we were gone and our power and heat went out. My cat escaped the house through the heat vent, most likely to find warmth. She was last seen on Friday March 17th by our neighbor. Our neighbor tried to get her to help but she wouldn't go to the neighbors. We arrived home Tuesday March 21st. She is no where in the house, but we did see paw prints in the snow around our house that lead out to the woods. We have called her all day long, but there is still no sign of her.
