Pictures are of him chilling out at the Vet. Full check up. Neutered male. All shots given, flea and tick medication, deworming, FIV and leukemia negative. In quarantine for 10 days because, unfortunately, he nipped me because he was a little stressed with all the poking and prodding, but immediately went back to purring and wanting to be petted. It's a cat thing. Not a feral for sure.

Even though he must have been picked up in a TNR round up. Needs to put on weight—was really, really hungry. Possible adoption coming if no owner is found. No microchip. Please share!
