Hello,

There is a labordoodle that has been living in the White Lake Creek in Bethel, NY, for over a month now. The local animal control is aware but not trying their hardest to trap him. She needs help and asked me if I could get people to assist to let her know. The story is the owner don't live in the area and how the dog got loose is beyond me. From what I can tell the owner will travel to the location when there is a sighting of Clyde but is not aggressive in the search and sometimes cannot go when he is seen. Animal control said she really didn't know about it, no one calls, she may have received an email, but she needs to be contacted at the time he is spotted and no one has done this.
