A couple of weeks ago, this little one showed up at my door. Most people would refer to him as a “stray”. To me he was a starving kitten that needed help. After a couple of weeks of regular feeding and many nights spent with him on the patio, he started acting like a kitten again. He chased his tail, followed me everywhere and waited for me at the door. After many unsuccessful attempts at homing him with a shelter, I found a place for him with a friend of a friend. I thought it was a safe and happy home for him. Unfortunately, the kitty ran away. I have been trying to locate again him as he needs a home before winter. He was last seen in Port Jervis near Culvert Street. If anyone has seen this little guy, please let me know. A rescue group has agreed to take him.
