This morning, I stepped out, and on my way in, my cat ran out the door, first hiding underneath the porch. MILO was last seen in the barn in the back of my rental.

MILO ran away. He was in my neighbors yard (his original owners abandoned him) and climbed over a fence to the next street when me and my neighbor tried to get him. I walked over to Cedar Street looking for him but couldn't find him. And there's that dog leashed on the fence on the other side of our property that might intimidate him. I still put food out for traveling and stray cats as there is some food for him on the front porch.
